A DREAM IS BORN . . .

In the early 1950's a dream was born. It was not an idle dream of a passing fancy, but a dream that found its conception in the realization of the growing need to provide the opportunity of Christian higher education to the young people of North Carolina. It was not an isolated dream that grew from one man's concern. Neither was it the dream of a single group of far-reaching men and women. It was a dream that almost simultaneously found its inception in the hearts and minds of many concerned and far-reaching men and women throughout all of Eastern North Carolina.

It was not an organized dream. It had the support of no particular group or organization. It was a dream of the people—one that was shared over a morning cup of coffee with a friend or discussed by a family on a drive through the country.

But the dream grew, and they talked about it at the corner drug store on a rainy afternoon, and they mentioned it to friends after church on a sunny Sunday morning. Letters were written, and editorials appeared in the newspapers and church magazines. Civic clubs passed resolutions about it, and women's societies vowed to support it.

This dream of the people refused to be ignored, and it continued to grow, until in 1955 two isolated events took place that were to merge and give the dream its long awaited realization.

Under the guidance of Bishop Paul N. Garber, the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Church, recognizing the need and responsibility of the church to provide Christian higher education for the young people of North Carolina, established the Bishop's Committee on Higher Education to further investigate the problem and to make recommendations concerning the steps that they should follow in fulfilling their responsibilities.

Also, at about the same time, the desire in the Fayetteville area for a college grew from a dream in the hearts of the people to a civic concern as Mayor George B. Herndon issued an appointment of a Fayetteville Steering Committee to seek the establishment of an institution of higher learning in or near the city.

Enthusiasm was high, and the dream developed fast. On March 7, 1956, the Steering Committee made contact with Bishop Garber and extended the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Church an invitation to establish a college in Fayetteville.

On March 27 of that same year the announcement was made that the Bishop's Committee had selected Fayetteville as the recommended location for the establishment of a new Methodist College.

A special session of the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Church convened in Goldsboro, and on May 14, 1956, the Conference approved the recommendation of the Committee.

The desire and initiative of the people of Fayetteville for a college had been met by the concern and responsibility of the Methodist Church to provide Christian higher education in an area of North Carolina which had hitherto been deprived of its own institution of higher education.

THE DREAM WAS BORN.

Dr. Lucius Stacy Weaver was elected the first president of Methodist College June 22, 1957.

Since its inception the Board of Trustees has been headed by the Honorable Terry Sanford, prominent attorney and outstanding Methodist layman from Fayetteville, who was elected Governor of North Carolina November 8, 1960. Mr. W.E. Horner of Sanford served as the first secretary.

On November 1, 1956, Methodist College was chartered by the State of North Carolina as a co-educational senior college of liberal arts.

The Board of Trustees recognized that one of their primary concerns was to provide a capable and experienced full-time leader for the college, to coordinate and to direct all the numerous activities involved in the establishment and maintenance of a worthy institution of higher learning. With this in mind, they met on June 22, 1957, and elected Dr. Lucius Stacy Weaver, then Superintendent of the Durham City Schools and church lay leader, as the first president of Methodist College, effective September 1, 1957. In accepting the appointment, Dr. Weaver pledged the college to two fundamentals from the outset: "Academic excellence and the Christian concept of life."

On April 3, 1959, the Board of Trustees approved the design for the Methodist College seal, inscribed with the motto, "Truth and Virtue."

The citizens of Fayetteville and Cumberland County agreed to provide a 600-acre site for the college, to contribute $2,000,000 for capital development, and to provide $50,000 per year for continuing support. In addition the City of Fayetteville agreed to assume the expense of extending all municipal utilities to the college site and pledged police and fire protection.

The Methodist Church pledged an additional $2,000,000 for capital development and projected plans for an annual sustaining fund that would eventually reach a total of $180,000 per year.

The important ground work for the college was done by the vigorous and active Board of Trustees, which was constituted by the Methodist Church and held its organizational meeting in Fayetteville on July 3, 1956.

During the next two years growth and development moved along at a rapid and hectic pace, though to those involved it often seemed agonizingly slow. Problems and frustrations were on almost every day occurrence, but the problems were smoothed over and the frustrations forgotten as the college that had once been but a dream began to take shape and become a growing reality.

There were myriads of details to be worked out and countless decisions to be made; but, under the leadership of Dr. Weaver and the Board of Trustees, progress moved steadily forward.

After careful study of several alternative locations on the perimeter of Fayetteville a final decision was made, and on February 21, 1957, the Fayetteville College Foundation deeded six hundred acres of rolling woodland located between U.S. Highway 401 and the Cape Fear River to Methodist College. It was considered an ideal location from the point of its natural beauty, its construction possibilities, and its potential for future development.

The architectural firm of Stevens and Wilkerson, of Atlanta, was retained. Under the direction of the Board of Trustees, they formulated a plan for the campus designed to embody contemporary building techniques and materials as well as classic principles of form, in keeping with the mood and philosophy of a college designed to serve the educational needs of today's students with an eye ever toward the future and the generations to come.

For its creativity and unity the design received a citation from a national architectural magazine.

The Dream Begins

To Grow . . .

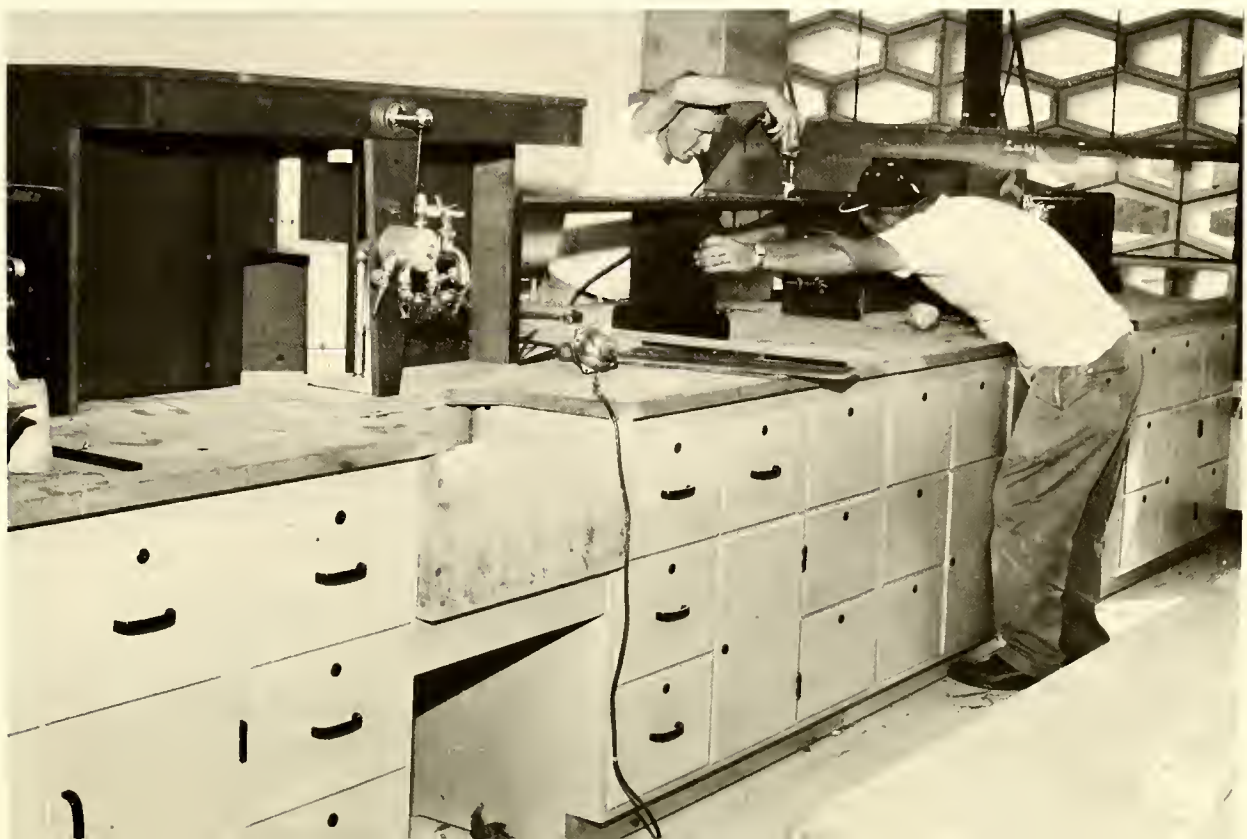

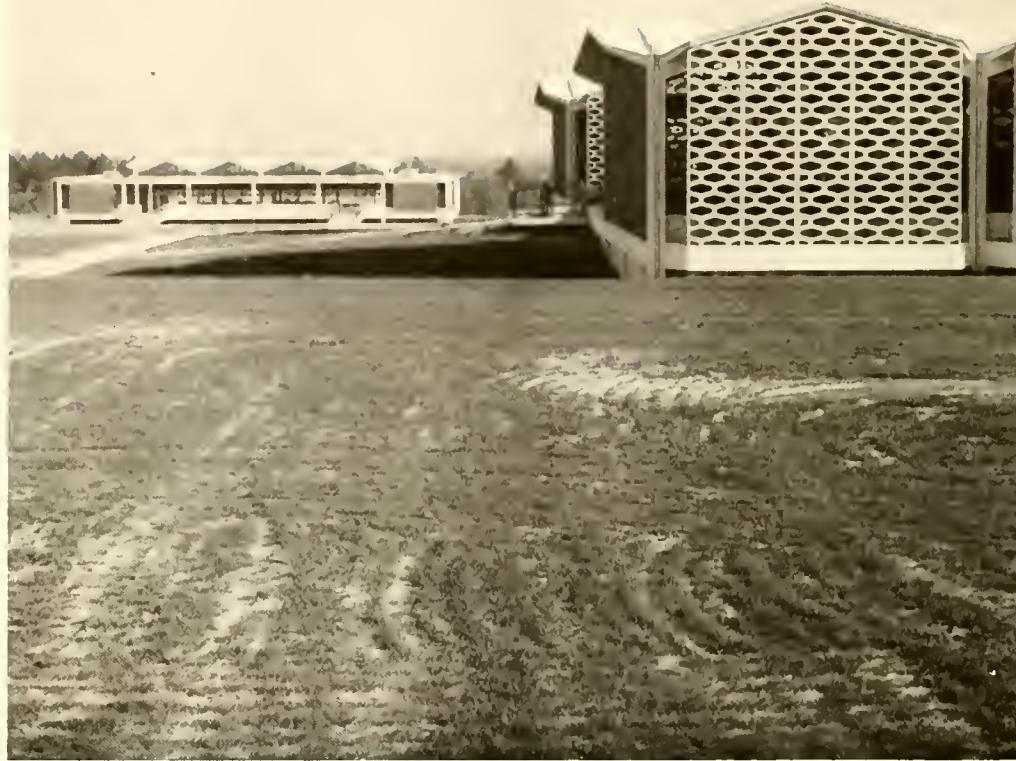

On August 26, 1958, the formal ground-breaking ceremony was held. Bids were secured, contracts were let, and construction of the basic educational units was begun.

A dream was born, and now it was growing. Not slowly, but rapidly, progress was being made. Utility lines were installed throughout the campus for both present and future buildings, and the master grading plan was completed. Out of mud and debris, with shouting foremen and sweating workmen, a college began to take shape.

. . . And Take Shape

The Classroom Building was completed first, in November, 1959. With its twenty-three large lecture rooms and forty-six faculty offices, realization of that one-time dream became eminent. Construction of the Student Union-Cafeteria and the Science Building moved along rapidly. The first administrative assistants were appointed. Dr. Clarence E. Ficken became the first Dean, coming to Methodist College from Ohio Wesleyan University. Mr. Charles McAdams undertook the manifold duties of Director of Public Relations. Mr. Frank H. Eason was appointed Comptroller, and Mr. Samuel R. Edwards left his post as principal of Foyetteville Senior High School to assume the duties of Director of Admissions and Registrar.

Mr. Alva W. Stewart became the college's first Librarian and Dr. Sam J. Wamack, Jr. accepted the position of Chaplain. The first faculty appointments were made with Dr. Charles Ott, professor of chemistry, and Dr. Womack, professor of Bible, heading the list. The pace had increased rapidly, and the dream of a college became more of a reality with each passing day, as the applications came in and the first students were accepted for enrollment.

Work was begun on paving the roads, sidewalks, and parking areas, as the college rapidly approached that magic date, September 16, 1960, when the first freshman class was to be admitted.

Alva W. Stewart, the first College Librarian, eagerly awaited the arrival of his first customers in the temporary library facilities in the Classroom Building.

On February 27, 1960, Methodist College's first six students were accepted. Here with the Public Relation Director, Charles McAdams, they are being given their first look at the new campus; Francis Hall, Marsden Pope, Mr. McAdams, Irving Barefoot, Potricio Jackson, Joe Ward, and Margaret Westan.

The Dream

Becomes A Reality . . .

On September 19, 1960, the dream became a reality, as Dr. Weaver welcomed the 128 students who had registered a few days before and numerous friends and supporters who gathered to share the occasion of the formal opening with those who had worked so diligently for the arrival of this day.

President Weaver welcomed everyone to the Formal Opening of the College at 10:30 a.m., on September 19, 1960. Seated behind Dr. Weaver are Dr. W.H. Plemmons, president of the North Carolina College Conference; Mr. Bert Ishee, president of the Fayetteville College Foundation; the Honorable Terry Sanford, chairman of the Board of Trustees; the Reverend Jack Page, pastor of Hoy Street Methodist Church; Bishop Paul N. Garber; Mayor George B. Herndon.

The Honorable Terry Sanford presides over a meeting of the Board of Trustees following the Formal Opening. Mrs. Weaver, Bishop Gorber, Dr. Weaver, Terry Sanford and Mrs. Sanford.

"Any birth is a joyous occasion," stated Dr. Weaver, "and it usually evokes congratulations to the parents, and I should say that if we had to select two parents this morning we would extend congratulations to the North Carolina Conference of the Methodist Church and to the Fayetteville College Foundation. These two agencies have brought this institution into being. They will nurture, sustain, and support."

The Honorable Terry Sanford, Chairman of the Board of Trustees, reminded the students that they would be the ones who would "give the final shape and character to this institution."

Bishop Paul N. Garber gave the formal address, emphasizing the need for Methodist College to remember its origins and support; the traditions that had arisen from the efforts of those who had developed the college over the previous four years—the traditions of vision to the future, of democratic foundations as evidenced through the contributions of some 40,000 North Carolinians, the realization of our necessity of well-mannered behavior, of overcoming hardships, and of belief in the spiritual forces of life. The dream had become a reality.

The Board of Trustees meet in the Cafeteria in the Student Union.

The story does not end with the realization of a dream, however, for a college must be a dynamic, ever-changing dream that continues to grow and continues to be fulfilled, as it meets the ever-expanding needs of the youth for which it was conceived.

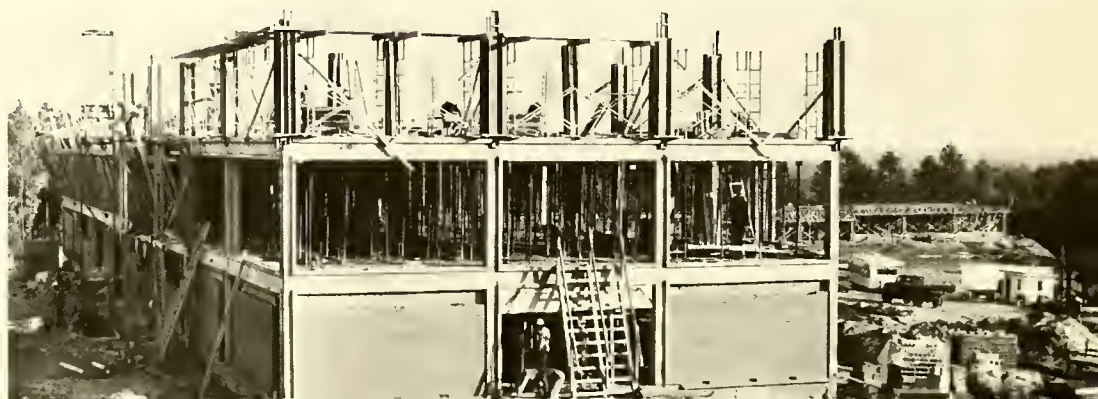

The Infirmary served as one of the first two Residence Halls.

Since that day almost four years ago many things have happened at Methodist College. The growth has been constant and the influence of the college has only begun to be felt. Physical growth has never stopped.

Now serving as faculty apartments, this building served as the Women's Residence Hall in 1962-63.

Construction of Garber Hall for Women and Cumberland Hall for Men began during the 1962-63 school term.

The second year at Methodist College saw the first resident students arrive to make their campus homes in the first two residence buildings to be constructed.

One of these buildings now serves as the music building and the other as an infirmary. With the arrival of the third year another residence building was completed. This now provides apartments for faculty and married students.

Also, during this year the first Physical Education Building was opened, and construction was begun on our first two permanent student residence halls.

Cumberland Hall for men students was named for the citizens of Cumberland county for their faithful support.

Students pass the time of day in front of Garber Hall, which was named in honor of Bishop Paul N. Garber, Bishop of the Richmond Area of the Methodist Church.

As the doors opened once again for this our fourth year of operation, construction seemed even more active than usual.

The women students moved into sumptuous Garber Hall, which was named in honor of Bishop Paul N. Garber, one of the most prominent leaders in the realization of this dream. The men found themselves seated squarely in the "top of luxury" as they gladly occupied their newly completed Cumberland Hall, named in honor of the thousands of residents of Cumberland County who have given so graciously their support, their time, and their money.

Construction of the Library began during the summer of 1963.

Under construction now, with its completion just around the corner, is our much anticipated Library, which will house a minimum of 50,000 volumes.

At the center of the campus, reaching its slender frame to the heavens, is our bell tower, the focal point of our campus. This, however, is just the beginning.

Broken concrete and mud and noise may be an inconvenience of times, but such things are soon forgotten as we watch this dream continue to grow. Soon the Administrative Building will be started. The Chapel and the Auditorium—Fine Arts Building will appear around the mall.

A permanent Gymnasium is planned, and in time new residence halls when they are needed. After that—who knows? But we have established a tradition at Methodist College—a tradition of growth.

Growth has occurred, not only in the physical plant, but in many other areas as well.

From the 128 enrolled in 1960, there are now 470 students calling Methodist College home.

With the students' help the workmen erected the Bell Tower, with the last piece going up in January, 1964.

The first freshman class registered September 16, 1960.

When classes began in 1960, the staff was small but brave: Dr. Ott, Mr. Snyder, Dr. Gates, Mr. Easan, Mr. Stewart, Dr. Wamack, Dr. Fox, Dr. Ficken, Mrs. Weaver, Dr. Weaver and Mr. Edwards.

Dr. Weaver congratulates Dr. Millard P. Burt on his appointment as Academic Dean which became effective September 1, 1963.

In 1960 twelve brave men and women made up the faculty and administrative staff. This year there were forty-seven to lead us along our way, in addition to the numerous secretaries and assistants who try to ease their load.

New positions were created as the need arose. Last year Mr. O.E. Dowd became the Dean of Students, and Dr. Mory E. Miller took over as our first Dean of Women.

This year we welcomed yet another addition to our administration as Dr. Millard P. Burt came to us from Atlantic Christian College and took over the reins of Dean of the College.

Drama Club members participated in "Brigadaan" during the Fine Arts Festival, May, 1962.

As the student body has increased in number and interests, many student groups have been formed to give us opportunities to meet in fellowship with others, to share our common interests, to serve our college, and to develop socially and intellectually together.

Two years ago the first campus newspaper appeared under the heading SMALL TALK. Last year work was begun that resulted in this, the first yearbook, and the Junior Class also designed and ordered the first class rings.

We now belong to one or more of the Science Club, the Dramatics Club, the Public Affairs Club, the Psychology Club, the Circle-K Club, the Young Democrats Club, and the Young Republicans Club.

The social life has expanded also as we have established such traditions as the annual Christmas Banquet. Women's Weekend has become an annual event where the girls treat the boys to a weekend of activities including a musical concert, a banquet, and a formal dance.

Also the Valentine Dance and May Day Dances will long be remembered, as they have now become traditions at our college.

The Student Union has become more and more a place to meet as we have found how important it is to have a haven to relax between classes, to drink a cake in the afternoon, and to chat with our love of the moment.

Margaret Weston was crowned the first May Queen on May 5, 1961. The members of the May Court were Pat Jackson, Mary Monroe, Charline McNutt and Patsy Melvin.

Jahn Ormond, chairman of the first Class Ring committee and R.V. Watson, the Jastens representative, took orders for the first class rings in February, 1963.

The first College Chorus practiced in the Science Building under Dr. Gotes' direction.

The cultural life at Methodist College has grown more each year with the Concert-Lecture Series, which was founded in interest of stimulating the minds and the souls of the student body. Also, we have been blessed with our inspiring College Chorus that has developed from a faithful few to a very accomplished group of musicians.

Student concerts and recitals began the first year as students shared their musical talent.

The Concert-Lecture Series was started during the spring of 1961. Otis Lambert, basso, accompanied by Mrs. Lambert, gave the first performance of the 1961-62 series.

The Gates family string ensemble.

The Intramural Program has grown constantly in strength and participation.

Mr. Edwards gladly served as our first Physical Education instructor.

The big news this year, however, was sports—as Methodist College became a charter member of Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and entered its first intercollegiate competition.

Four years ago our athletic program mainly consisted of physical education, led zealously by our Registrar, Mr. Edwards. With growth, however, came expansion and in September 1962, Methodist College welcomed its first coach, Mr. Ernie Schwarz. The intramural program grew, and both men and women found time for some friendly (?) competition.

Occasionally there were minor disagreements.

The first Chapel speaker was the Reverend Millord C. Dunn, District Superintendent of the Foyetteville District of the Methodist Church.

From the first year of operation, religion has been an integral part of our education, both in class and out. We have had an infinite variety of Chapel speakers and programs, which started with the late Reverend Millord C. Dunn, Fayetteville District Superintendent, on September 21, 1960. He told us that he had "looked forward to the opening of this college as a little boy looks forward to Santa Claus."

One of the first organizations formed on campus was the Student Christian Association, and it has sponsored a rewarding Religious Emphasis Week every year. Out of the S.C.A. developed the Interdenominational Fellowship of Service, formed by students interested in religious vocations. And now the Baptist Student Union and Canterbury Clubs are being formed along with other denominational groups in the planning stages.

The first organization formed at Methodist College was the Student Christian Association.

The Reverend Troy Barrett led our second Religious Emphasis Week, April 9-13, 1963.

As we grew, we also took on more responsibility. During the first years of operation it was not felt that the student body was large enough to establish an adequate student government. With this in mind the Community Council was born, with representatives from the student body and faculty members, appointed by the President of the College, making up its membership. Until the spring of 1963, this group served as the self-governing board for Methodist College.

Then, in early 1963, the Community Council established a constitution committee which was authorized to develop a proposed plan of student government for faculty approval. The approval was forthcoming, and the student body voted to adopt the proposed constitution and established the Student Government Association. Elections were held, and Julian Jessup became the Association's first president.

The Community Council was our first form of Student Government.

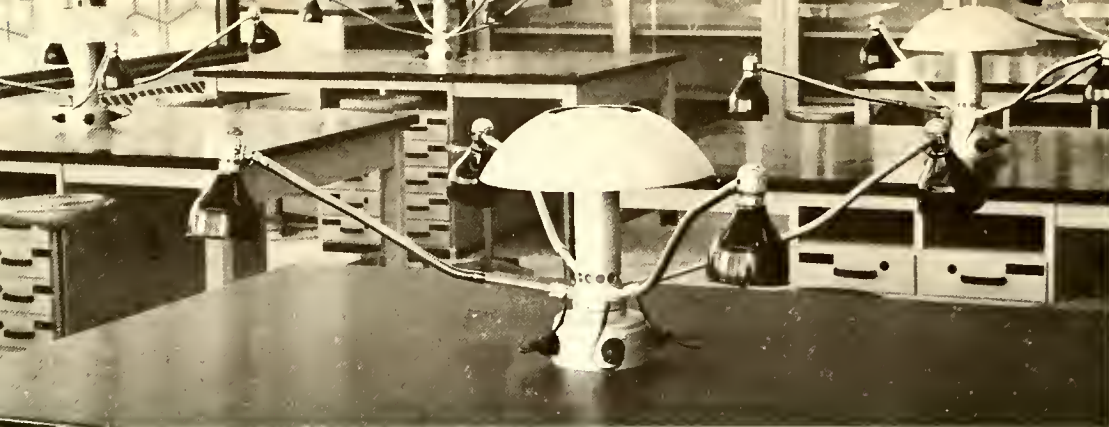

The first Student Government Association elections were held in the spring of 1963.

Harold Teague, Chorline McNutt, Ralph Hoggard and Donald Porsons were the first class officers.

Deon Dowd congratulates Julian Jessup on his election as the first student body president.

Growth has indeed been the key ward at Methadist Callege. In every aspect of campus life we have grown and develaped, as new stand-ards are established, new traditians formulated, and new gaals reached. This year we will graduate our first Senior Class.

This, hawever, is only the first step af many that will surely fallaw. We have reason ta be praud of our callege, far in a few short years it has grown from a dream to a fully realized institutiuon of higher learning.

It is not just a campus with an assemblage of nice new buildings. It is not just books in a library or professors in their classes. It is not just dances, or clubs, or basketball games, or exams, or chapel, or bridge in the Student Union, or term papers, or elections, or studying all night. It is not just any of these things, but it is a combination of all of them and much more.

Its success cannot be measured by the size of the campus or the number of students enrolled. Its success can be measured only in so far as it instills in the lives of some of its students those ideals that were established by President Weaver in 1957—"Academic excellence and the Christian concept of life."

Dr. Weaver is congratulated on the recognition of Methodist College by the North Carolina College Conference by Dr. Earl Donieley, president and Dr. James E. Hillman, chairman of the Committee on Standards.

We have received all the recognitions which are available to an institution at our present stage of development. Based on the high quality of our academic program, Methodist College is listed in the official publication of educational institutions compiled by the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

The College has been approved by the North Carolina Department of Public Instruction and the State Board of Education for the training of public school teachers.

The College has been approved by the University Senate of the Methodist General Board of Education for the undergraduate training of ministers.

The College is a member of the North Carolina College Conference and has been recognized as operating under the standards required for accreditation as a senior college.

Governor Terry Sanford used the occasion of Founder's Day in 1962 to deliver the report of the Governor's Committee on Higher Education.

The first Dean's List.

Since the earliest days of the college there has been a growing interest in providing scholarship and loan funds for deserving students. Our endowment has continued to grow considerably and its development is one of the principal goals ahead.

The students have indicated their desire to meet the standards established by President Weaver. Each semester a high percentage of our students appear on the Dean's List for academic excellence. Many of us plan to continue our education in graduate or professional schools, and many will leave and go to other schools, not as students, but as teachers.

We are proud of the heritage that is ours and of the traditions we have helped establish. Our gratitude goes out to many, not only for what they have done, but also for the continuing support we know they will share with us at Methodist College as it continues to live up to its first tradition—to grow.

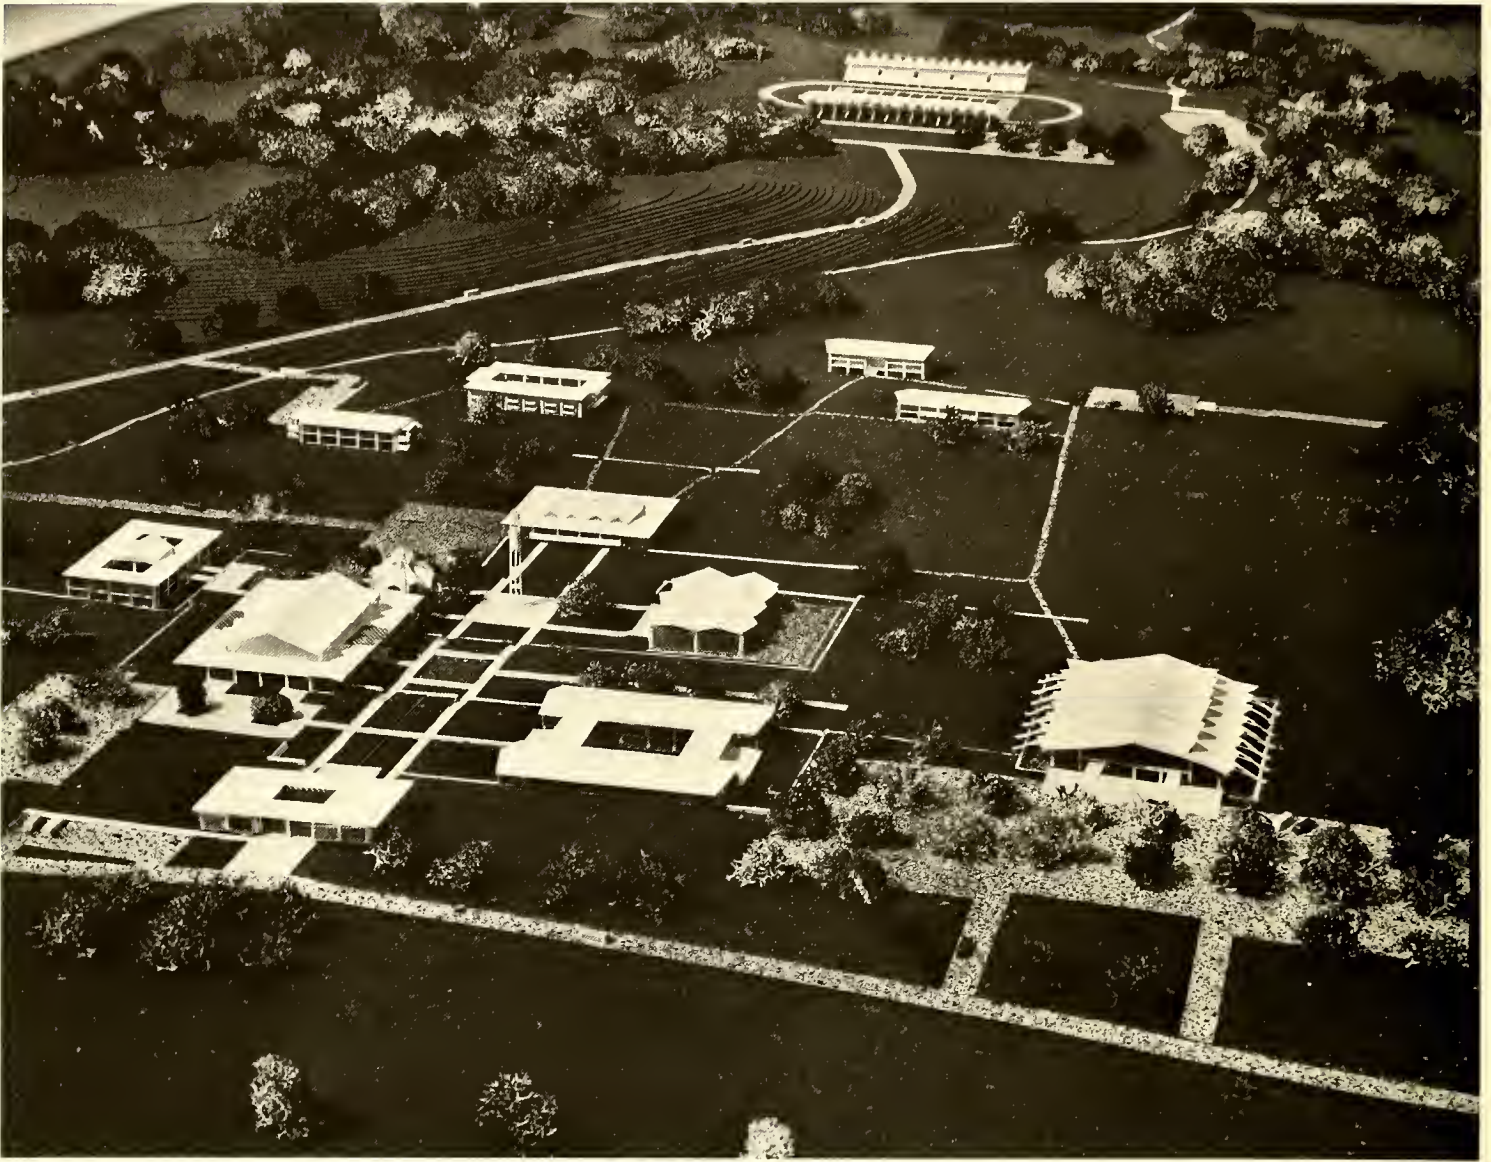

Louis Spilman placed second in the W.C.T.U.'s state oratory contest.

The Undergraduate Student Counselors formed in the spring of 1963. Under the leadership of Dr. Mary Miller, Dean of Women, they have provided leadership and guidance for the in-coming Freshmen and transfer students.

SGA Officers

All students who are enrolled at Methodist College become members of the Student Government Association. These four leaders guide the activities during the year of the SGA. The offices of President and Vice-President are filled by members of the Junior and Senior Classes, while the Secretary and Treasurer may be members of any Class. The SGA sponsors various social affairs throughout the year and is in charge of a student chapel program each semester. Although 1963-64 was the first year that Methodist College had a SGA organization, under the leadership of Julian Jessup it became one of the most active organizations on campus.

Judicial Council

The Student Government Association is divided into three branches, Legislative, Judicial, and Executive. The judicial power of the SGA is vested in the Judicial Council. The Judicial Council consists of eight members. Membership shall consist of the four respective class presidents, and four appointed members. The Chief Justice is elected by his fellow Justices. The Council has the power to interpret the Constitution of the SGA, to try persons impeached by the Senate, and to try members of the SGA for violation of the Constitution, the by-laws, acts of the Senate, and rules of the college.

Methodist College athletics started in the fall of 1961 with a Freshman-Sophomore volleyball game. In the spring of 1962, there was a softball league, but not on an intramural basis. During 1962-63 intramurals hit a high spot with football, basketball, softball, tennis, golf, and bowling being offered.

President Weaver announced in the spring of 1963 that Methodist College had become a member of the new Dixie Intercollegiate Athletic Conference and would participate in college basketball, tennis, bowling, and golf. Six colleges were the charter members of this conference, which is dedicated to principles of amateurism in intercollegiate athletics. The keystone in the constitution of this conference is that no athletic scholarships will be given.

A strong intramural program continued in the fall of 1963 with football and basketball. The girls formed a hockey and basketball intramural program. Methodist played N.C. Wesleyan college in a field day event, emerged victorious, and brought home the first trophy in sports ever won at Methodist College.

In March of 1964, Methodist College was the host team in the conference bowling tournament held at B & B Lanes in Fayetteville. The basketball squad traveled to Charleston, S.C. to participate in the conference basketball tournament. The spring intramural program continued on campus with tennis, softball, and bowling competition.

The living record of history as it happens is at your finger tips every day—in the Fayetteville Observer. It tells you in words what is going on, and it shows you who makes news—and how they do it—in pictures.

WORLD EVENTS

World happenings, as well as national, state and local events are recorded in depth and detail, for your hasty scanning or leisurely study. And, like other history books, all is permanently recorded for future reference.

Thousands of trained, alert journalists throughout America and around the world search out the news that it is your right to know. They dig out the facts to keep you informed. And your newspaper, through its wire services and its own editorial staff, produces your daily history book.

There is one thing that everyone, everywhere has in common, and that is the constant hunger for news. It is a hunger which must be satisfied every day—a hunger which is expressed in this one absorbing question—What's happening today?

LOCAL NEWS

You must know what is happening in your own town. You must know what is happening in politics, sports and society. You must know what is happening in your city hall, in Washington, in the capitals of Europe.

You can depend on your newspaper for complete, objective news reporting. It's the best way to keep abreast of all the news, every day.
